Cosmetic vs. Professional Skin Care Products

The difference between over the counter cosmetics (what department stores and drug stores offer) and professional (pharmaceutical) grade products is FDA regulation. The majority of skincare products is cosmetic grade and unregulated by the FDA. The Cosmetic Center carries pharmaceutical grade FDA regulated skin care products. The FDA requires that pharmaceutical grade products be 99.9% pure ingredients. 95% of the skincare industry is cosmetic or over the counter quality. We carry many top pharmaceutical grade brands including:

GLYTONE, AVENE, SKINCEUTICALS, REPLENIX, and REVALE'SKIN

Soul meets soul on lovers' lips. -Percy Bysshe Shelley

Procedure of the Month

Intense Pulse Light

Lips Become Chapped Due to the Following

- Exposure to wind, sun, and cold, dry air
 - Obstructed breathing, such as allergic rhinitis, which forces you to breathe through your mouth
 - Contact dermatitis due to irritants or allergens in cosmetics or skin-care products
 - Certain medications, such as those used to treat acne
 - A habit of licking your lips
 - Dehydration
- Sun Damage: Wide areas of pigmentation on face, neck, chest, and other areas
 - Sunspots: Pigmented lesions, also known as age spots
 - Rosacea: General inflammation of the cheeks and face
 - Spider Veins: Individual vessels, which can be red, blue, or purple in color

Product of the Month

To Prevent Chapped Lips Try These Tips

- Use an oil-based lubricating cream, such as Aquaphor Healing Ointment, or lip balm containing petrolatum or beeswax.
- Apply lip balm before going in cold, dry weather. Reapply several times while outside.
- Avoid licking your lips. Saliva evaporates quickly, leaving lips drier than before you licked them.
- Avoid using a flavored lip balm, which can tempt you to lick your lips.
- Stay hydrated by drinking plenty of fluids.
- Use a humidifier at home to keep moisture in the air.
- If chapped lips become more severe, consult your doctor.
